

Spokane Tribe Installs Transfer Station Scales

Workers prepare the ground and build forms for the truck weight scales at the Spokane Tribe's solid waste transfer station near Wellpinit, Washington.

The Snoqualmie Tribal Casino opened in November, 2008

As part of the Snoqualmie Tribe's new Solid Waste Management Plan, the new casino will be composting kitchen waste as well as recycling the canola oil for use in their vehicles. The casino has a beautiful setting near Snoqualmie Falls and west of North Bend, WA.

Yakama Nation Cleans-Up Tire Piles

The Yakama Nation was successful in getting help from the State of Washington DOE to clean up several very large tire piles on their reservation. The Pumphouse Tire Pile pictured at left was listed as the third largest illegal tire pile in the state.